

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

- A timing circuit for generating clock signals, includes an acquisition digital phase locked loop with a wide capture range for closely following an input signal with its associated disturbances. An output digital phase locked loop having a slow response relative to the acquisition phase locked loop tracks an output of the acquisition phase locked loop to generate an output signal for the timing circuit.
- 5